Carnival Princesses Chosen

Rhoda Feinstein, Nancy Korn, Dixi Lambert, Heidi Leus and Anitra Mamen were selected from 39 hopefuls as Winter Carnival Princesses for 1962.

After a strenuous afternoon of tests and deliberation yesterday, the five judges announced their final choices.

In an exclusive interview after their introduction to the cheering crowd in the Cro-Magnon Ballroom, the Daily asked each girl, "What was the first thing that came into your mind when you were told that you were a Princess?"

REPLIES

Rhoda Feinstein, BA 2, from Hampstead: "They must have made a mistake!"

Nancy Korn, P & OT 2, from Albany, N.Y.: "There must be someone else named Nancy Korn who is running!"

Dixi Lambert, BA 2, from Westmount: "I was too stunned to think!"

Heidi Leus, BA 2, from Mount Royal: "I wanted to cry!"

Anitra Mamen, BSc MDCM 2, from St. Anne de Bellevue: "They're joking!"

The judges were Phil DeZwirek, Carnival Chairman, Nancy Cavanagh, Queen's Chairman and 1961 Carnival Queen, Sonny Gordon, Carnival Vice-Chairman, Bob Carswell, Students' Society President, and Assistant Dean C.D. Solin of Arts and Science.

Commented DeZwirek, "The girls had to pass physical as well as mental tests which they have sworn not to reveal because of possible trouble with the University."

Said Nancy Cavanagh, "It was much less nerve-racking when I was running last year than it is judging. I've never had so much trouble in my whole life."

NARROWED IT DOWN

The 39 candidates were each interviewed by the panel of judges for two minutes and after much deliberation a semi-final group of 12 were announced. These girls were interviewed again and then the finalists were presented in the Ballroom immediately following the fashion show.

The five beauties will tour classes during this week and next, and will make numerous radio and television appearances.

Voting for Carnival Queen takes place next Wednesday and the winner will be announced at the Lower Campus ceremonies next Thursday night.

Three Groups To Compete In Sculpture Contest

Gals and guys grab your mitens. The long-awaited snow sculpturing contest is on the way. Judging will be on St. Valentine's Day, February 14, and trophies will be presented to the groups with the best entries.

The contest has been divided into three sections. There are the Inter-Faculty, Inter-Fraternity, and Inter-Sorority classes. Fraternities will construct their masterpieces on their respective property, but the Faculty and Sorority entries will appear on the Lower Campus.

All entries will be judged on the basis of originality, architectural design, balance, and general eye-appeal. There are no specific themes or subject matters.

Judges for the contest have been carefully selected from the best of the Faculty and the Executive of the Winter Carnival Committee. The decisions of the judges are final and no entries can be returned.

Chest X-Rays

Major Problem Discussed

by CHARLIE SHANNON

The Key problem facing the West in its communication with newly-emergent nations is that so few of us know what the West represents, declared Lewis Perinbam yesterday.

Mr. Perinbam, Secretary of the Canadian National Commission for UNESCO, was speaking on "The Responsibility of the University to Society on an International Level", the first of Newman Center's studies of University importance. He stressed that Foreign Aid programs overemphasize technological training, neglecting to present Western moral and political ideals, the only area where we differ from Communism.

BINDING FORCE

The Universities, a natural binding force in international affairs, must meet the challenge of exhibiting the West to what he terms "the re-emerging nations", without being condescending to their historical traditions. Canada, with its admirable reputation, is especially responsible for the forging of links with Afro-Asian universities.

The most important division, in the view of these nations, is not between the Communist and Western blocs, but between the "have" and "have-not" nations. Thus, the present "World Revolution" is not an ideological but a human one, an attempt to regain the dignity lost under colonial rule.

PRESERVE VALUES

The basic roles of the Universities, Mr. Perinbam suggested, were the preservation of our Civilization's basic values and culture, the advancement of our knowledge of the world and its inhabitants, and the ideal of "Social Good", and the developing of individual minds in freedom. Universities also have a responsibility to widen the nation's outlook, while teaching it the skills to accomplish any task.

On the practical level, he urged that graduates spend two or three years, perhaps teaching, in developing countries, before taking up their career. Not only does this broaden one's education, but it creates person-to-person contacts. Mr. Perinbam favors private, rather than government, financing of these exchanges, as it increases program flexibility and awareness in the public. He suggested that if each Canadian University student contributed one dollar to CUSO, the necessary total of $100,000 would be achieved.

Attitudes of previous colonial nations towards the West have changed, and the attitudes of former imperialist nations have to change too. The University is the means for this change.

Bishops To Host NFCUS Seminar

Bishops University will host the annual seminar of the NFCUS Quebec region on February 17-18. The chosen topic is "The Canadian Identity, a Positive Force?"

This subject will be discussed from the political, economic, and cultural points of view by three panels of invited speakers. Each of these panel discussions will be followed by a question period.

SPEAKERS SLATED

Among the speakers who have already accepted to address the conference are Professor Scott Gordon of Carleton; C.M. Drury, President, Montreal Board of Trade; Professor C.W.E. McGlaughlin, President, Royal Bank of Canada; Professor James Grey, Bishops University; D.J. Jones, poet; Professor Hugh McLennan of McGill; and Mr. H. Grastey, M.P.

President O.S. Glass of Bishops University will open the seminar, and the Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent will address the banquet on Saturday evening.

McGill has been invited to send 5 delegates to this Conference. Applications are available at the S.E.C. office, and the deadline for them is Feb. 9.

FEBRUARY 6, 1962

Union Progress

The Winter issue of McGill News, quarterly publication of our Graduates' Society, has some interesting news on the progress of plans for a replacement for Cro-Magnon House. In an unsigned article entitled "McGill Builds", plans for a two-stage development program are described.

The following excerpts from the report are of interest to all students concerned with the vital problem of a new student centre. "Funds for the immediate stage of this development plan, which involves nine major projects, are already in hand. . . . It is anticipated that work on all the projects in the initial stage will have commenced before the Spring of 1962, and a number of them have already been completed or are now in process."

Listed as item number ten (sic) in the first stage is a University Centre. The report continues: "The urgent need for facilities to replace the present Students' Union has prompted the development committees to recommend early action in the provision of a modern University Centre for student activities, although the university has at the moment less than half the money that will be required for its construction. The matter of an appropriate site and the preparation of plans is presently being actively investigated. It is envisioned that the University Centre will contain dining facilities for faculty and students, Ballroom and meeting rooms, offices for student organizations, the University Book Store, lounges, reading rooms, music rooms, a student dormitory, warden's suite and various service rooms. The sum of $1,173,000 is now in hand but the estimated total cost has been set at $2,950,000."

We are encouraged to know that the planning for our new Union has progressed to the stage of "active investigation". However, there are one or two points raised by the report which we hope our New Union Committee is looking into.

Although the proposed University Centre is tacked on as a kind of appendage to phase one in the report, it is clearly not included in the promise of preliminary construction by this Spring. Indeed no target dates in this connection are mentioned.

Secondly, the report indicates that the university is short by some $1,777,000 of the necessary funds but it also declares that some $3,623,000 is already available for phase two developments to be carried out in the 1963-65 period. We trust that this is not a true indication of the priority being placed on the Union.

Finally, we are somewhat curious about the nature of the proposed University Centre. We have no particular objection to the inclusion of the University Book Store but we are rather dubious about those warden's quarters. There have been persistent reports circulating to the effect that the new University Centre, when it is ultimately built, will be placed under the administrative authority of the University.

We are proud at McGill of the freedom our students have in the management of their own activities. We are proud of the way our fellow students have, under the most trying of circumstances, administered Cro-Magnon House. Much as we desire to see the New Union built, anxious as we are to encourage and facilitate the planning, we must emphatically proclaim our opposition to any proposals that would transfer responsibility over the new Union from the student body.

Letters To The Editor

Explains Carnival Atmosphere of Parliament

Dear Madam:

Yesterday's editorial certainly had valid ground for the sharp criticism launched at many of the M.P.'s of this year's parliament. However, the arguments were an inadequate description of both the weaknesses and accomplishments of this year's parliament.

Firstly, it should be realized that a complete transition from last year's mockery was very difficult, especially when considering that many of the participants were the same. Secondly, in spite of the immaturity of many of the M.P.'s, several serious bills of high calibre were introduced. The foundation of a serious parliament must be built before we can hope that more capable students will take part.

Further, it is a definite mistake to think that any party entered this year's parliament with the hope of excelling as clowns. Every political group entered with serious intention and the so-called circus acts were due to a misunderstanding on the part of many of the members as to what the role of a politician is, and how a person should assume this role in the House of Commons.

The Progressive Conservative Party was especially guilty in this respect. Though its intentions were serious, the members were undoubtedly labouring under a misconception of the true purposes and decorum which the Queen's Loyal Opposition should display. It seemed as if their only object was to hear their own voices and find the best means to overthrow the existing government. The dignity of the House was completely ignored by these gentlemen if there was any opportunity to ridicule the government. So intent were they on playing the role of the sophisticated politician, that they only helped to underline the stigma of pettiness with which this year's parliament was endowed by their numerous procedural quibbles.

The Liberal Party also displayed their share of tactics by trying to avoid presenting a Speech from the Throne that would enable concrete debate to follow. Many of the Party's members preferred to chat in the halls rather than listen to the arguments which the Opposition had to offer. Several ministers introduced several well thought out and constructive bills, but unfortunately, the bulk of the party felt its main role was to bang on tables and yell 'nasty' comments at their ancient enemy.

The remaining three parties, though not having the political experience of some of the members of the two major parties, acted in much more decorous manner and on the whole greatly contributed towards a better Parliament.

The League for Nuclear Disarmament, though very sincere about their arguments, unfortunately, confined themselves to one concern, and therefore did not have that diversity which any political party must possess to properly represent and discuss the numerous problems with which Canada is faced.

Thus, in general, one may say that the members of this year's parliament have much to learn respecting what constitutes not only a politician but that sort of politician who will be most beneficial to the welfare of our country. This in itself relates the necessity of a Model Parliament; and if a worthwhile purpose and defined accomplishments have been established, future parliaments may prove this year's session to be of definite value.

People should also consider that many members of parliament took three days of their time and many weeks of preparation to develop something much more tangible than what was called a "CIRCUS".

Open That Skating Rink

Dear Madam:

In a past issue of the Daily, that of Sept. 15, 59, you noted, under a headline "Sports facilities Canada's best", that our sports facilities "are all available for use by all students". Ironically, this was displayed under a large photograph of our winter stadium skating rink.

That article is certainly in need of revision, for if there is one facility that is effectively not open to all students, it is the McGill Winter Stadium.

The ice rink is open for use of the general student body on Monday night from 8 to 10 pm, and on Saturday evening from 6 to 7.

Surely, no one considers that the use of the rink for 3 hours per week, places it in the category of a sports facility open to all students? What is the use of having a rink if it is not to be used by the students, or rather, if the students are not permitted to use it, for anyone who has been to the rink on Monday night can testify that it is generally packed.

As it is now, the rink is rented out to Montreal's teams at $15 an hour or in use of the McGill team, all week long, except for 3 hours. Has our rink been built for the clubs of Montreal or perhaps to give a McGill hockey team somewhere to practice?

It seems that the whole idea of having a team to represent McGill is highly artificial if it does not represent the spontaneous interest and activity of the students in this particular sport, and how can this develop if the skating rink is closed to the students.

Whatever the reason, this situation is certainly not due to the lack of interest of the students. Surely then, it is not too much to ask that the Winter Stadium be opened to the general student body more often? What is the use of having the finest sports facilities in Canada if they are not available for the student's use?

Alphonse Ouimet To Be Awards Banquet Guest

In an exclusive interview with the Daily, Bill Hutchison, Vice-President of the Students' Society, announced that J. Alphonse Ouimet, President of C.B.C., will be the guest speaker at the annual Awards Banquet to be held on March 16.

Mr. Ouimet received his Bachelor of Arts from St. Mary's College in 1928. He then came to McGill where he was granted his degree in Electrical Engineering in 1932. During his years here, Mr. Ouimet worked his way through by tutoring in Mathematics. He was graduated near the top of his class.

In his letter of acceptance, Mr. Ouimet stated that he would be very pleased to return to McGill, and that he was especially happy to accept the honour. It is rumoured that his address will not be technical.

Commenting on his position as President of the C.B.C., Mr. Ouimet said, "What a hell of a job for an engineer!"

Mr. Hutchison stated, "We are very happy that he has accepted, both because of our interest in the radio field, with Radio McGill in the experimental stage, and because of his interest in student affairs."

The Banquet formally marks the end of campus activities for the year. Recognition is shown to those students who have excelled in campus activities in the form of gold, silver, and bronze awards.

Brecht Play Fully Cast; Will Appear Next Month

The call for actors for Bertholt Brecht's "The Caucasian Chalk Circle" was rewarded with the greatest number of student volunteers in the past ten years.

There were thirty roles to be filled, and the ten leads will be played by students who appeared in the English Department's production of Christopher Marlowe's "Doctor Faustus". However, the remaining parts will be filled by students who have never acted in McGill productions before.

Professor Frank Faragoh, Director of the play, remarked that the record response was due to Brecht's penetrating views on modern society", and the success of Brecht's "The Three Penny Opera", currently playing at the Theatre du Nouveau Monde in Montreal.

The play will be presented on March 15, 16, and 17, and the full cast will appear in next Monday's Daily.

The youngest member of the cast is the three-year-old son of English Professor Louis Dudek.

Debaters Held Winners In Norfolk Double Vote

Two McGill debaters talked their way out of Norfolk Penitentiary last Saturday.

Phil DeZwirek and Normie May upheld the affirmative of the topic, "Resolved that a panel of three judges should replace the jury system". There was a system of double voting used to determine the winners of the debate. In a house vote, McGill won by a wide majority. When the judges' decision was announced, however, Norfolk was victorious. On Sunday, a recount was ordered, and it was discovered that McGill had won the judges' decision as well.

The Norfolk team argued that the Jury system was an inherent part of the U.S. Democratic system. McGill then proceeded to show that there were many examples of errors by juries, such as condemning innocent men to death or life in prison. There are also cases too complicated for the man in the street to understand, making it impossible for him to make an intelligent judgement.

The McGill men went on to say that judges are impartial, and pointed out that no jury could have arrived at the decision in the Brown vs. the Board of Education case. (The Supreme Court upheld the School Desegregation decision.)

May, a fourth year Law student, has been awarded the Gold Key. DeZwirek, in second year Law, is Chairman of the Winter Carnival. He has been awarded the Gold A for excellence in debating.

Tenors Needed Desperately For Male Chorus

The McGill Male Chorus, a group of tuneful students, are valiantly attempting to keep their heads above water. The reason? They are in critical need of higher-pitched melodious men.

The Chorus now consists of twelve members, most of whom are of the baritone-bass range. In order to round out the group, at least six tenors are urgently needed.

ENJOY HARMONY

The Choir is made up of boys who enjoy harmonizing and who have a smattering of musical background. They meet every Wednesday at 5 pm for a practice of at least an hour and a quarter, and sing inspiring collegiate songs, as well as popular tunes. It's an hour well spent under the conduction of Wayne Riddell.

If you're interested in singing in a lively, congenial atmosphere, and if you are able to sing the higher parts in a male chorus, leave your name with Don Cameron at VI. 2-4492.

Intramural Highlights

by TOM LOCKWOOD

Intramural Sports edged toward a climax last week as play-offs commenced in almost every section.

In Ice Hockey, the semi-finals got under way with Arts and Science meeting Engineering in a two-game total point series. The only marker of the first encounter came off the stick of Wade Kenny. In the second game, Robinson put the Engineers back in the contest with a pair of tallies. Rene Dugay provided the goal which resulted in the tie score at the end of regulation time. In the first period of sudden-death overtime, Bruce Johansson pumped home the winning goal which gave the Arts and Science squad the right to advance into the finals.

On Wednesday, Law got off on the right foot in their quest for the title by blanking Commerce 2-0. Gavin Wylie and Jim Grant provided the margin of victory. In the next contest, Commerce came back strong and shaded the boys from Law 5-4. However, they fell one goal short in the final analysis and Law earned the right to meet Arts and Science for the Championship.

This will also be a two-game total point affair with the first encounter on this Wednesday and the second game on Friday. Both these will start at 1 pm. If a third game is necessary, it will be played on Wednesday, Feb. 14 at 7:30 pm.

In the Floor Hockey semi-final play-offs, the Inlays slashed past Engineering 4-2 by virtue of three markers by Lambert. The other goal for the victors was produced by Mahoney, while Eli Masters did all the scoring for the losers. In the other game, the Crescent edged the Bakers 3-2 and consequently will advance into the final round against the Inlays from Dentistry. In the Banker-Crescent encounter, McNeil with two and Grout with one supplied the punch necessary to elevate the Commerce squad into the finals.

In the only other field of endeavour, namely Volleyball, the Mops blanked the Shysters 2-0 by the scores of 15-7 and 18-16. In another match, the People nosed out Education 2-1 and therefore will meet the Mops on Thursday February 8. Electric 5 will also participate in the semi-finals as they slaughtered the Giants 2-0. The other team to gain a berth for the Thursday matches were the Vikings who topped the Dent 2B in a very close spectacle. They won the first one 15-12, lost the second 16-14, but pulled through in the third 15-6 to cop the play-off spot.

Basketballers Face Loyola In City League

Tonight at the Currie Gym, the Senior Basketball Redmen face the Loyola Warriors at 8 pm in a game which could determine the Redmen's fate in this year's City Intercollegiate Basketball League race.

A victory tonight will give them a 6-0 record, which will place McGill in an extremely favourable position over Sir George. The Redmen hold a previous win over Sir George in a great ball game. They also boast two earlier victories over Loyola by handy margins.

The Junior Varsity Indians meet Loyola's Jay Vee squad tonight as well. This affair begins at 7 pm. The Indians at the moment are in grave trouble with no one seemingly capable of leading the squad. They have won three outings so far, but lost in two disappointing encounters to St. Joseph Teachers College.

RUGGER SEMINAR

A Mid-Winter Seminar for all interested beginners, will open tomorrow night at 7 pm in the Arthur Currie Gymnasium. In a series of two talks, the first tomorrow and the second on Wednesday, Feb. 14, McGill's Rugger Coach, Professor Covo will explain the elements of the game to any enthusiasts of the sport, and will illustrate his lectures with films. Anyone who is interested in playing the game next season is very welcome to attend and the less skilled members of last year's rugger squad might do well to attend.

Redmen, Carabins Meet In Crucial Ice Match

While the Red and White basketballers reign supreme in the gyms of Quebec and Ontario, the hockey clubs of this University are also making a spirited bid for their respective league titles.

Tomorrow night, at the Winter Stadium, a featured double-header beginning at 6 pm will match the Senior and Junior clubs of McGill against their respective U. of M. counterparts.

The senior Redmen, currently holding down second place in the O.Q.A.A. League, and with two games in hand, possess the opportunity to overhaul the pace-setting University of Toronto Blues. Tomorrow night's game, and indeed every game from now on, is crucial for the Redmen in that their championship hopes rest on their ability to win their remaining games.

Although the odds-makers have placed Les Carabins a notch below the Redmen, the French-Canadian puck-chasers from U. of M. have always been at their most dangerous best against McGill.

However, with Mike Richards and Leo Konyk slated to return to ice-duty, and forwards Flaherty, Jones, and Gilfillan at peak condition, we feel safe to predict a victory for Coach Kelly Burnett's boys.

DOUBLE HEADER

In the first of the double-header, the McGill Braves will meet the U. of M. Junior Carabins. Crucial in the sense that it will decide who will hold down second spot in the City Intercollegiate loop, the match pits a heavier and more experienced U. of M. squad against a faster and more skilled "tribe" of Braves.

Headlining the Braves' attack will be such stalwarts as Steve Molson, John Tibbets, Bob Shatilla, and Ken Simon.

With goalie Bruce Glencross at his starry best, and rearguards Chiarella and McFarlane policing the ice, Coach Dave Copp's Braves feel confident of their chances.

Anyone with a case of midweek blues can quickly become all smiles again by showing up at the Winter Stadium at 6 pm tomorrow night, for the start of a thrilling two bouts.
